A NOTE

The Bhāratī Jaina Parişat presents before the scholarly world this volume of "Jaina Bibliography" by Mr. Chhote Lal Jain as the first number of its Jaina Bibliography Seris. The vast field of Jaina Literature, Art and Archaeology, Philosophy and Religion is still mostly unexplored. The scholars of the East and the West have already made valuable researches into the Vedic and Buddhistic Literature, but unfortunately the Jaina Literature which covers a wide field of indological studies has not been properly appreciated. This is to a great extent due to the apathy of the Jaina community who did not care to bring the religio-cultural heritage of their forebears within the easy reach of the modern scholars. It is a happy sign nowadays that some patrons of the Jaina Culture are trying to organise cultural institutions for Jaina Studies, and there are some Jaina scholars trained in scientific methods who have already made valuable contributions to this branch of knowledge.

But a research scholar should have as his constant companion a bibliography of the subject he is interested in. There are the Vedic Bibliography, the Bibliographie Bouddhique and similar bibliographies. For the benefit of the Jaina scholars, Dr. A. Guerinot, a French savant compiled a Jaina Bibliography, but this book covered researches upto the period of 1906. Mr. Jain has tried to supplement the treatise of Guerniot and his book covers researches till 1925. He intends to make it uptodate in another volume.

The readers will find ample evidence of his laborious researches in the compilation of the present work which will be a sure guide for their studies in any branch of the Jaina Cult.

The Bhāratī Jaina Parisat is thankful to Mr. C. L. Jain for placing his valuable researches with it for publication.

It is expected that the authorities of different educational and cultural institutions will extend their co-operation by keeping copies of this volume for their libraries and thereby enable us to undertake similar publications for the benefit of indologists.

Dated the 25th July, 1945. 1, Gour Laha Street, Calcutta.

FOREWORD

About half a century ago the celebrated French Orientalist, Dr. A. Guerinot, Docteur és Letters of the University of Paris, undertook the first systematic survey of all the available printed books and articles on Jainism published in European languages. Inci lentally he gave valuable information with regard to the published as well unpublished manuscript materials on Jaina religion and philosophy available in India and abroad. His (i) Bibliographie Jaina and (ii) his Repertoire d'Epigraphie Jaina were published between 1906-1908. Since then many valuable articles and books on Jainism have been published, to mention among others the surveys of Jaina thought and culture by two German scholars: Dr. Glasenapp and Dr. Schubring; but those books were not easily accessible to our Indian scholars. Indian periodicals and Journals have continued to publish various studies on Jainism; such studies are growing in number and still remain scattered. To help the general public as well students of Jainism to follow the main trends of Jaina studies in recent years was the laudable aspiration of Mr. Chhote Lal Jain, the Honorary General Secretary of the Vīra Śāsana Saṃgha. In spite of his multifarious duties and obligations, and even in the midst of a serious breakdown in his health owing to overwork, Mr. Jain with his characteristic devotion to the sacred cause, has completed the printing of his admirable work, Jaina Bibliography, Vol. I, which brings the survey down to the end of 1925. The material for the second volume covering the last 20 years between 1925-1944 are also ready and will be published in due time.

Meanwhile, Mr. Chhote Lal Jain had the satisfaction of developing the plan of a Centre of Jaina Culture on the occasion of the grand celebration in Calcutta commemorating the 2500th anniversary of the First Sermon delivered by Lord Mahāvīra. That celebration was attended not only by the Jaina community of North and Central India including Rajputana and by a few Jaina delegates from South India, but also by the leaders of Brahmanical and Buddhist religions representing the progressive thought of the majority communities of India.

The spiritual legacies of Jainism should not be confined to the Jaina community alone, but should be made available to entire humanity, especially in this age of crisis when violence threatend to ruin the entire fabric of human civilisation. The deathless principle of non-violence (ahimsā) is the noblest heritage of Jainism for which the whole mankind should ever be grateful. Even if we fail at present to draw the precise chronological relations of the earlier Tirthamkaras (promulgators of the Sacred Law), we are now definite that in the age of Lord Sri Kṛṣṇa of the Mahābhārata epoch his cousin, Aristanemi examplified in his own life the sublime principle of ahimsā by renouncing the world on the very eve of his wedding, when he saw that hundreds of innocent animals were about to be slaughtered simply for the entertainment of the guests at that royal wedding. That was the starting point of the realisation by Man of his kinship with the dumb animal world, differing from man only in linguistic expression, but animated by the same urge of life. So it was Jainism which for the first time bridged over the gulf between human life and animal life, and preached the basic truth of one common life pervading the whole Society. From such a profound realisation was born that creative compassion which made man look upon the dumb cattle as "Poems of Pity" in the inimitable words of Mahatma Gandhi, who, as we know, comes from Kathiawad-Gujarat, the home land of Lord Neminatha (C. 1200 B.C.) and which part of India even to-day is the stronghold of Jaina religion and culture. Then came another great preceptor, Lord Parsvanatha (C. 800 B.C.), who was not only a great spiritual leader but the first systematizer of the Jaina philosophy based on the Chatur-Yama or the four-fold principles, which were amplified by Lord Mahāvīra (C. 600 B.C.), a senior contemporary of Gautama Buddha.

Buddhism no doubt, derived from Jainism its main inspirations as well as the principle of the church organisation (Samgha) and the fundamental doctrine of Ahimsa or non-violence. Buddhism simply applied to the life of the individual and of the nation as well as on international plane, the primordial historical truth of Ahirpsa which Jainism for the first time discovered like the law of gravitation of the living universe. If we want to keep intact the countless cultural heritages of Man and if we want to develop the creative possibilities of mankind to its fullest extent, we must discard the inhumane, nay, canniballistic path of war and violence and take to the path of non-violence as pointed out by the immortal preceptors of Jainism. Such a cause deserves the support and collaboration not only of all men and women of about 20 lacs of Jains scattered all over India, but also of all serious workers in the cause of human welfare, in fact, all servants of humanity in the East as well as in the West.

The dream of my esteemed friend, Mr. Chhote Lal Jain, and his colleagues, is to develop such an up-to-date centre of studies on Jaina religion and culture as would be able to give all facilities for research to men and women of all nations irrespective of caste, creed or clime. We know that some western ladies actually joined the order of Jain Nuns and the catholicity of Jainism is remarkable even in this age. Moreover, we can count upon the deepscated instinct of philanthropy which is ingrained in the Jaina community; and so we hope that the idea of developing a world centre of research or non-violence in the projected seat of Jain culture would soon materialise and that all organisations in the Fast and the West that are striving to make World Peace a reality would come forward to help my esteemed friend, Mr. Chhote Lal Jain and his colleagues. His first volume of Bibliography will. I am sure, rouse the attention of many scholars to this much-neglected field of research and, I am sure, the publiccations by the Vīra Śāsana Samgha that will follow will sustain the interest thus aroused. Though the work of Mr. Jain is a preliminary work of compilation, he has spared no pains to make the book as useful and attractive to the general readers as possible. I wish him all succeess in his noble mission.

PREFACE.

The contributions of the Jains to the Indian Culture and Sciences have been so vast that the history of India will be incomplete without a reference to them. But, of the three great religions of India—Jainism, Buddhism and Brahmanism, Jainism has been least studied and most misunderstood for want of proper knowledge of the available literature. But still it is a matter of great pleasure and encouragement that the great French scholar, Dr. A. Guerinot supplied the want to some extent by publishing his valuable volumes "Essai De Bibliographic Jaina" in 1906 and "Répertoire d'Epigraphie Jaina" in 1908. These books have been of great help to scholars and students interested in the study of Jainism.

Much has been done in the field of Jaina study and many books have been published and numerous articles have appeared in the Indian and foreign journals, since the days of Dr. Guerinot. So it was my long desire to follow the foot-steps of the great French savant and supplement his works by bringing out two more volumes containing all available informations about Jainism from 1906. With that aim in view I went on taking down notes of references to Jains and Jainism from works on various subjects. As an humble student I had the privilege of working at the (Royal) Asiatic Society of Bengal for a number of years and this gave me the facility of using the books of the society. I have also referred to the collections of the Imperial Library and some other libraries.

In the volume which is now published, I have excluded almost all the references found in Guerinot's books above mentioned and I have taken care to bring in all references not found in his works and all those published between 1906 and 1925. Bibliography of the books, published since 1925 up-to-date will appear in another volume which is now under preparation.

I have to point out here, the departure I have made from the lines of Guerinot. While he has issued a separate volume for Jaina Epigraphy, I have included it under a separate section in this work. Almost all the references given in this book relate to the books written in English and other European languages.

I am conscious of the many drawbacks in my book for which I request to be pardoned, since this is only the result of a labour of love without any pretence to scholarship.

In this connection I have to place on record my gratitude and thankfulness to the late Babu Balailal Dutt, B.A., the Librarian of the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, who helped me by providing me with the necessary books and in some cases by marking out the important references.

It was the intention of the authorities of the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal to bring out this work as one of their own publications. But since they could not do so owing to war emergencies Mr. S. C. Seal, M.A., B.L., the Honorary General Secretary of the Indian Research Institute and of the Bhāratī Jaina Pariṣat has kindly come forward to publish it which otherwise would have remained unpublished till perhaps the end of the present Worldwar. Therefore, I thank him most sincerely for his kindness in bringing this work to the light of the day. I must also thank Mr. Asok Kumar Bhattacharjee, M.A., who, very kindly revised the press copy and helped me in going through the proofs.

Before I conclude, I must convey my respectful thanks to Dr. Kalidas Nag, M.A., D. Litt. (Paris), of the Calcutta University and General Secretary, Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal for writing the learned foreward to this humble work of mine.

I should regard my labour amply rewarded if the scholars and students of research can derive some help from this book for studying the various branches of knowledge of Jainism.

Calcutta, 25th July, 1945. Śrāvaņa Kṛṣṇa Pratipada, Vīra Sambat, 2471, Chhote Lal Jain.

P. 447. Jain.

Francis, W. Bellary. Madras, 1904. (MDG).

- P. 30. The Jain temples scattered all over the district seem to have been erected about 1070, though the Ganigitti shrine at Hampi was built in 1385 A.D.
- P.54. The occurrence of the Jains is chiefly found in Bellary, Hadagalli and Harpanahalli tāluks. Their temples are scattered throughout those places. Description of their manners and customs.
 - P. 54, 112, 229. Jains of the Bogara subdivision.
- P. 198. At Adoni are some Jain tirthankaras carved upon rocks. Description.
- P. 202. At Chinnatumbal there are two ruined and deserted Jain temples with the typical stone pyramidal roofs.
- P. 206. The village of Peddatumbal contains representations of Jain Tirthankaras. Of the many deserted shrines three seem to have been originally Jain.
- P. 210. One of the Mackenzie manuscripts states that king Bijjala built a fort and lived at Chippigiri, a Jain colony in ancient days. On the hill north of the village is a Jain temple called "the Basti". The temple contains several representations of scated and standing (nude) figures.
- Pp. 232-233. In the site of old Kurugodu, stands a collection of Jain temples. The architectural designs in this district exhibit the gradual degrees by which the Jain style shades into the Chalukyan.
- Pp. 242-243. The village of Kogali was once a considerable Jain centre. The Jain temple in it is still called "the Basti". There are many Jain relics scattered in the village. Inscriptions of the place record gifts to the Jain temple of Chenna-Pārśva in the village by the Hoysala ruler Vīra Rāmnātha in 1275 and 1276 A.D. and to the Vīrabhadra temple by Achyut Rāya of Vijaynagar.
- P. 248. One of the twelve inscriptions of the Western Chalukya king Vikramāditya VI refers to the Jain temple of Barhma Jinālaya in a village anciently called Bālguli.
- P. 273. The stepped towers of the group of Jain temples in Hampi are very noticeable. Besides this group and the Ganigitti there is another Jain shrine.

P. 291. Kotturu was once a stronghold of the Jains. Basappa Vanquished the Jains of the place in controversy and converted them to the Lingayet faith, and set up a lingam in their principal temple. This temple is now known as the Murukallu-math. It is an unusually good specimen of an undoubtedly Jain temple.

Pp. 300-301. In the Rayadrug tāluk office there is a Jain image of a nude male figure, fully described. The whole sculpture is executed with much detail and finish. Along the foot of it runs an inscription.

There are some Jain antiquities in Rayadrug. These are carvings on rocks known as "Rasa Siddha's hermitage".

- P. 154. At Gooty the interior of the little shrine at the foot of the citadel rock has a Jain flavour.
- Pp. 161-162. Konakondla was at one time a centre of Jainism, and it is (except Kambaduru) the only village in the north or centre of the district which contains any traces of the former prevalence of that faith. Many Jains images and inscriptions near the village.
- P. 176. The architecture in the three temples of interest in the village Kambaduru contains traces of Jain influence. The one called "The Chola temple" is in style Chalukyan—Fully described.
- P. 178. There is an old Jain temple in the village Agali containing a nude image of one of the Tirthankaras.
- P. 179. In the new Jain temple at Amarpur is an old stone bearing nude figure and an inscription in old Canarese. A similar stone surmounted by two nude figures, bearing an inscription, is in the Añjaneya temple in Tammadahalli.
 - P. 185. At Ratnagari is an old Jain temple.

The Jain and Buddhist influence in Southern India began to disappear from about the beginning of the seventh century A.D.

The ceremony known as kaluvettal (lit. impaling) is associated with the Jains of old and is held to commemorate the savage treatment they received at the hands of their Saiva persecutors.

Widespread influence of Jainism and Buddhism in the district can be traced from stone remains found in different places. There are monuments which are attributed either to the Buddhists or the Jains.

P. 2. In his later days Kumārapāla greatly favoured the Jains, or perhaps adopted their creed, and they possessed great political influence.

Vīsaladeva and his father Vīradhavala were largely supported by two wealthy Jain brothers, Vastupāla and Tejahpāla, famous in their days as builders of temples.

Vastupāla was a minister of Vīradhavala.

Temples in most of the principal cities of Gujarāt were built or repaired by Vastupāla.

Vīsaladeva was encouraged by his minister to repair or rebuild, in rich style, the old temple of Kālikā.

figured naked, young, handsome, with a calm countenance, and arms reaching down to the knees; his breast is marked with the Śrīvatsa figure". (Varāhamihira's Brihat-Samhitā Ch. 58, V. 45).

P. 3 Halos or bhāmandalas are common to all classes of images, Hindu, Buddhist and Jain. All the Tīrthankaras have generally halos.

Pp. 4-6. The caves of Khandagiri, Udayagiri and Nilgiri-All the caves ascribed to the Jains and not to the Buddhists. Prevalence of Jainism in Khandagiri from a long time—Trīśūlas open or pointed, Stūpas, Svāstikas, barred railings, railed trees, wheels, the Goddess Śrī common to Jainism as to other religions—Symbols closely connected with Jainism observed in these caves—Jainism fairly well proved to be older than Buddhism, its last two Tīrthankaras, Mahāvīrā and Pārśvanātha being historical personages—The last two Tīrthankaras are generally assigned respectively to the 6th and 8th century B.C.—Proof of ample margin for the spread of Jainism— the inscriptions support the hypothesis of Jain occupation—King Khāravela of the Hāthigumphā inscription made the grant to the Jains—Caves having images meant as temples, places of worship; while those without such images meant as residences for Jain monks.

P. 8. The $S\bar{a}taghari\bar{a}$ cave images of 24 Jain $T\bar{i}rthankaras$. Of the three broken caves to the left of the $S\bar{a}tabakhri\bar{a}$ two have images of $T\bar{i}rthankaras$ and their attendants.

The Jain temple over the Sātabakhriā cave is of the same age as the cave. The other temple crowning the hill was built in the 18th century by a Jain merchant of Cuttack.

The Jain caves began to be made at about the time of Aśoka's conquest of Kalinga (60 B.C.).

P. 9. The revival of Jainism with more elaborate image-worship is apparently due to the influence of the Jains in Western and Southern India.

To the influence of the Răstrakūtas flourishing from A.D. 748 to A.D. 973, the revival of Jain worship in Orissa in the 9th to 11th century may be reasonably supposed to have been duc. The subsequent disappearance of Jainism from Orissa is probably attributed to the increasing influence of Vaiṣṇavism and specially of Jagannātha worship—Persecution of Jain and Bauddha Sādhus in the hills round Bhuvaneś vara by Madar Mahādeva, grandson of Chodaganga Deva in the close of the 12th century A.D.—No Jain remains have been found which can be authentically dated later than this period.

- P. 20. In the Jain temple in the terrace of the Khandagiri there is a masonry platform with small walls in which are embedded five images of Tirthankaras.

P. 11. Many broken statues of Tīrthankaras were obtained by Cunningham in the course of his excavations at the western end of Kankālī Tīlā.

Kankālī Tīlā was the site of some important Jain building which existed during the rule of the Indo-Scythians.

That the Jain establishment, which once occupied this site, existed down to the Muhammadan period, is proved by inscribed Jina images dated in the 12th century of the Vikrama era.

- P. 17. Two Jain temples discovered in the Kankālī Ţīlā.
- P. 27. The Jain community of ancient Mathurā had its main sanctuary on the site of Kankālī Ţīlā.

There are inscriptions which prove that the great Jain establishment of the Kankali Tila existed till the time of the Muhammadan conquest, when all Buddhist monuments of Mathura had long since fallen into ruins.

Pp. 41-43. Some remarks regarding images of Jinas or Tirthankaras-The great Jain site of Mathura is the Kankali Ţilā-The Tirthankara image is in all probability a purely Indian creation-The most striking feature of the Tirthankara figure is its nudity in which case the image belongs to the Digambara sect-The Jina has symbols not only on the palms and soles, but also in the centre of the breast. The hair is usually arranged in short curls in the shape of spirals turned towards the right. The earlier specimens are somewhat different: The hair assumes the appearance of a periwig, or it hangs down on the shoulders in straight locks-The earlier Tirthankaras have neither uṣṇṣa nor ūrṇā but those of the later part of the Middle Ages have a distinct excrescence on the top of the head-In artistic merit Jain figures are far inferior to those of the Buddhists-Devotional scenes are commonly found on the pedestals of Tirthankara figures of the Kuṣāna period-The standing Jain figures are more devoid of grace and expression than the seated ones-Mention is made of the fourfold Jain figures in the possession of the Mathura Museum.

In the earlier Jain sculptures of the Kuṣāna and Gupta periods there is nothing to distinguish the individual Tīrthaṅkaras, except the snake-hood in the case of Supārśva and Pārśvanātha. In mediaeval sculpture there is usually a symbol or cognizance carved on the pedestal to show which Tīrthaṅkara the image represents.

SRINIVAS, T. The Antiquities of Kulpak. (JHAS, 1916. pp. 14-36).

Pp. 15-16. Description of a female deity placed on a pedestal with four miniature pillars, and explanation of certain symbols found therein. The Chakra is one of the sacred emblems of the Buddhists, the Jains and the Hindus. With the Buddhists and the Jains the Chakra is "the wheel of the Law", and with the Hindus, "the wheel of Life". The lion cognizance belongs to Mahāvīra, the 24th Tīrthankara, but from the diminutive antelopes in addition it can be inferred that the pedestal has reference to Santinātha.

Pp. 22-23. An old Jain temple: The Sikharas and the cells of the three principal deities alone belong to the original structure. The chief presiding deity is Rikabdeva or Ādinātha occupying the middle shrine, the other two are Mahāvīra and Neminātha. In course of renovation of the temple numerous sculptures were brought to light. Of these the most important are nine images of Tirthankaras. There is also a fine image of Mahāvīra, with the little statuettes of the other 23 Tīrthankaras arranged as a border.

P. 129. Contribution in an almost equal degree of the three great religious sects, the Buddhists, the Hindus and the Jains, in the temples and monastaries of Ellora.

Pp. 130 131. Remarks on Jain temples: They are very perfect, very elaborate, very sumptuous, but one and all destitute of creative genius. They are richly decorated, but we are struck with their narrow nerveless design and we gaze unmoved at their composed and icy images. It has always been so with the Jains. They followed the Buddhist at an early date in adopting iconism in their religion, but even at the beginning of the Christian era their sculptures displayed the same nerveless character that they do in mediaeval and later times. It is dangerous to utilize Buddhist works as a basis for determining as grounds of style the age of Jain works, or vice versa.

LIST OF ANTIQUITIES:

A Digambara Jain image of Santinatha at Budha Pushkar donated by the Assistant Commissioner, Ajmer.

143 (IX)

Report, do, for the year ending 31st March 1921.

P. 1. ANTIQUITIES:

A pillar having four Jain images (Chaumukha) on its sides bearing an inscription dated Sam. 1137 (A.D. 1080).

A pedestal of a Jain image with an inscription dated Sam. 1216 (A.D. 1150).

Pp. 2-6. INSCRIPTIONS (copied):

An inscription engraved underneath a Jain image found at Ajmer in a well near Husband Memorial High School. It is on a pillar with images on its four sides (Chaumukha) and under one of the facets is the emblem of lotus representing the image to be either of Padmanātha or Neminātha. Dated Sam. 1137 (A. D. 1080)

An undated inscription which appears to be of the 12th C. from the script, on a lintel of one of the arches of the temple of Siva, 3 miles from Jaipur city. The inscriptions originally belonged to a Jain temple out of the material of which the mandapa of this temple was constructed. It contains five verses and extols Jina Nābhi.

Do, on a pedestal of a Jain image (lost) found at Badhnor in the Dhār territory, dated Sam. 1216 recording the name of Āchārya Kumārasena of Lāḍa Vāgaḍa Saṅgha.

Do, on a stone slab lying loose on a platform built round a tree in front of the Rāmapol gate at Chitor, dated Sam. 1358 (A.D. 1302).

.It is important as it gives the latest date of the reign of Rāwal Samarasimha of Mewar. The latest epigraphic evidence known so far gives the date, Sam. 1344 (A. D. 1387).

Do, on a pillar in the Jain temple now known as Singar Chaurī at Chitor, dated Sam. 1505 (A.D. 1448). The Building where the inscribed pillar exists is really a Jain temple and not the Singar Chaurī or the place of marriage of Rāṇā Kumbha's daughter. The temple has no image at present.

P. 203. Jainism prevailed in Mysore before the third cent. B.C. and it continued a popular faith during more than a thousand years of the Christian era. It was the State creed in the time of Gangas, of some of the Rāshtrakūtas and Kalachuryas and of the early Hoysalas. Also of the minor states of Punnata, of the Santaras, the early Changalvas and the Kongalvas. But the Chola conquests in 1004, the conversion of the Hoysala King in 1117 and the assasination of the Kalachurya King in 1167 were severe blows to its influence. In an endeavour to accomodate itself to the age, Jina is described in 1151 as Siva, Brahma, Buddha and Vishnu; and for a generation following we find, chieftains who were supporters of all the four creeds.

List of Jain hierarchy and the succession of Jain Gurus according to the inscriptions (mentioned) arranged according to date of the first, fifth, eleventh, twelfth, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

- P. 206. Sankarāchārya opposed the Jains and revived Siva worship but in the middle of the twelfth century was established the Lingayit faith and into this great number of Jains were merged, while Jain images and temples were converted to Linga use.
- P. 207. Conversion of King Bitti Deva (Hoysala) from Jainism to Vaiṣṇavism by Rāmānuja. Bitter animosity continued to exist against the Jains and in 1368, they complained in a body to King Bukka-Rāya of the persecution by the Vaiṣṇavaṣ.
- P. 208. From the Vira-Saivas, who had largely superseded the Jains in the west, the latter were exposed to violent opposition. In 1638 an over-zealous Lingayat official stamped a Linga on the pillars of the principal Jain temple at Halebid,

- P. 209. The Jain disputant Vidyānanda and his success in various royal courts and his destruction of the Christian faith at Seringapatam.
- P. 210. Inscription of 812 mentions the Yapaniyas, a Jain unorthodox sect (E. I. Vol. IV p. 338).

KARNA, RAM. Bijapur Inscription of Dhavala of Hastikundi; Vikrama-Samvat 1053. (EI, x, 1909-10, p. 17-24).

The stone was originally fixed in Jain temple situated about 2 miles from the village of Bijapur in the Bālī dist. of the Jodhpur State. It was subsequently removed to the dharmasāla belonging to the Jain mahājans of Bijapur—A grant to a Jain temple by Vidagdharāja (Rāṣṭrakūṭa)—Practically there are two inscriptions of dates, Sam. 1053 and 996.

SASTRI, H. KRISHNA. Danavulapadu Pillar Inscription of Srivijaya. (EI, x, 1909-10, p. 147-153).

Engraved on the three faces of one of the Jain pillars at Danavula-padu, Cuddapah district. Records that general Srivijaya voluntarily resigned this world & took Samnyāsa in order to attain eternal bliss. In the second part of the inscription is an invocatory clause proclaiming glory to the prosperous doctrine of the Jina. King Nripatunga also called Atisayadhavala and Amoghavarṣa, identical with the Rāṣṭrakūṭa Amoghavarṣa I (A.D 814-5 to 877-8)—Śrīvijaya mentioned in the Sravana-Belgola epitaph of Mallisena, was one of the Jain teachers of great learning, a successor to Hemasena and a contemporary of an unspecified Ganga king.

Dharmapuri: Known in the 9th cent. as Tagadur. It was a famous city with rich temples, pleasure-gardens and high enclosure walls, a centre of Jainism and Saivism. The still attractive temple of Mallikarjuna, the Jain sculptures in the Ramakka tank and Adhaman-kōṭṭai and the archaic epigraphs show its importance in antiquity in the age of the Chēra kings. Till about 931 A.D. it was the capital of the Nolambas.

74. (Kanarese). On the four faces of a pillar built into the floor of the mantapa in front of the Mallikārjuna temple. A record of king Mahēndrādhirāja-Noļamba in Ś. 815, Paridhāvin. Records a grant to a Jain basadi by a certain Nidhiyanna and Chandiyanna. The former received from the king the village of Mūlapalli which he made over to Kanakasēna Siddhānta Bhatāra, pupil of Vinayasēna Siddhānta Bhattāra of the Pogarīyagana with the Sēnānvaya, Mūlasanga etc. for the repairs of the basti.

75-76. Do. A record of the Pallava king grants to the same basadi.

81. Do. On four sides of a broken pillar lying in the Māriyamman temple in the fort. A record of the Pallava Mahēndra Nolamba, dated in $. 800, Vilambin, apparently making grant to a Jain temple. [It was the Mahendra who conquered Mahābali Bāṇa Rāya about A.D. 890 and gave his name Mahēndramangalam to Adhamankōṭṭai.]

Records gift of vārāvaikal (?) collected by the perunagarattar of Kumāramārttandapuram (hamlet of Tirunāgēsvararam) for the renovation of the Göpura and the tiruchchurrailai called Kumaramarttandam in the Milādudaiyar palli (temple) of that village, which is stated to have been situated in Tinkarai-Tiraimūr-nādu. [The Chōla king was evidently Aditya I. The name Miladudaiyar palli, again, suggests a Jain shrine. This, together with the Jain images round the shrine of the goddess in the Naganathasvami temple, shows that this place must have been an early Jain centre. Again Milādudaiyār is another name for saint Meypporulnāyanār and if we suppose that the palli was a school or matha built in his honour, the present epigraph can be said to give a clue to his date, i.e., that he was prior to Aditya I.

He was connected with the Chedi chief of Kiliyur (S. Arcot Dist), see also S. 1. 1. Vol. II., P. 166, for a reference to the saint.]

SITARAM. History of Sirohi Raj from the Earliest times to the Present Day. Allahabad, 1920.

Pp. 3075. Sirohi: 12 Jain temples called the Deva Sari near the palace. Of these, the most important is that of Chaumukhiji built in V.E. 1634 (A.D. 1577).

Bamanwarji: Four miles north-west of Pindwara stands the Jain temple of Bamanwarji (Banwarji) dedicated to Mahāvīra. An inscription is in a temple near Banwar dated in V.E. 1519 (A.D. 1462).

Jharoli: An old village to the north west of Pindwara contains temple of śāntināth—Inscription bearing date 1251 V.E. on a stone slab affixed to the wall, shows that it was originally dedicated to Mahāvira Svāmi.

Pindwara: In the temple of Lakshminārāyaṇa are two inscriptions of the time of Parmār Rāja Dhārāwarsh, one bearing date V.E. 1234 (1177) affixed to a wall of the Jain temple of Mahāvīra Svāmi.

Ajari: Temple of Mahāvīra Svāmi, near Gopalji's temple. The Jain temple contains an inscription dated 1269 V.E. (1212) on the seat of the image of Sarasvati.

Vasantgarh: To the east stands a Jain temple of the fifteenth century in which there is an image with an inscription telling us that it was installed at Vasantpur in 1507 V.E. (1451) during the reign of Kumbhakarna. Several finds of this place presented by the Maharao to the Jains of Pindwara, who placed them in the temple of Mahavīra there. Most of the images are undoubtedly old, that of Risabhanāth, having an inscription dated 744 V.E. (687).

Nandia: To the north of the village a big Jain temple containing an inscription dated 1130 V.E. (1073), in which the temple itself is called Nandeśvara Chaitya.

Kojra: This village contains a Jain temple of Sambhavanātha, but an inscription dated 1224 V.E. (1167) on a column inside calls it a temple of Pārśvanātha.

Vasa: A peculiar feature of Saiva temple of Jagdish is that it has a Jain image on the top. A parallel case may be cited of a Saiva temple in Santpur which remained without an idol for many years, after which a Jain image was installed.

There was a village named Kalagra about two miles from Vasa containing a Jain temple of Pārśvanātha.

Kayadran: In the middle of the village a Jain temple. There existed an old Jain temple here, the stones of which were removed to Rohera for the construction of the new temple.

Ora: Common gate to the three temples near the Vaishnava temple surmounted by a Jain image which shows that it originally belonged to a Jain temple. There is also a Jain temple of Sarnath in the village, containing an inscription dated 1240 V.E. (1383), in which the temple is styled Mahāvīra Chaitya.

Mungthala: Here is a large Jain temple, the oldest inscription on which bears date 1216 V.E. (1159).

Girwar: The village contains ruins of an old temple. The marble gate to the Vaisnava temple of Pattanārāyan appears to have belonged to some Jain temple of Chandravati, as a Jain image is engraved in it.

Datani: Here is a Jain temple.

Barman: There is a Jain temple in the village, in a wall of which an image of the Sun-God is inlaid.

Anadra: In this village there exists a Jain temple.

Sanpur: Restoration of a Jain temple built in about the twelfth 'century.

Abu: Mount Abu contains shrines of the Jain Tirthankaras—Dilwara temples are Jain—The temple of Vimala Sah, known as the Vimalvasahi, is sacred to Ādinātha and was completed in 1088 V. E. (1031)—The other temple is that of Vastupala and Tej-pala built in 1287 V. E. (1231) and is dedicated to Neminatha—In addition to these, there are several other temples of Svetambara Jains, such as three-storied temple of Chaumukhji, the temple of Sāntinātha and a temple of Digambara Jains.

Achalgarh: The brothers Vastupala and Tejpala were Jains, yet there is evidence to shew that they restored several Siva temples—Temple of Sāntinātha near the mausoleum of Rāja Man of Sirohi—It was built by Solanki Rāja Kumārpāla and contain three images, one of which bears an inscription dated 1302 V.E. (1245)—On the hill the shrine of Kunthunātha and temple of Pārsvanātha, Neminātha and Ādinātha.

Oria: A Jain temple of Mahāvīra Svāmi stands in this village.

P. 51 n. The inscription of the Palri Jain temple dated 1239 V.E. (1182), the inscription in the Jain temple of Bagingaon dated 1359 V.E. (1302) and another show that even during the ascendency of the Parmärs the part of the country north of the Sirohi town was in the possession of Chauhāns. An inscription dated 1289 V.E. (1232) has also been found in the temple of Sāntinātha in Sewara; this is of the time of Deora Bijai Singh.

- P. 509. Prabhāvakacharita or the lives of Jain saints by Pradyumna sūri, gives an account of the life of the Jain Āchārya Kālaka sūri and of the politics of India at the period when Vikrama is said to have founded the Samvat era, and thus proves beyond all doubt that there was a Vikramāditya at 56 B.C. ruling over Ujjain. It makes Nāgārjuna, the famous Buddha Scholiast and founder of the Mahāyāna, a Jain. The account it gives of king Kriṣṇa of Mānakheṭa seems merely to be a reminiscence of the account of one of the kings of that name who ruled much later at Mānyakheṭa (Malkhed) and who were Jains. It might be true that Vikrama patronized Jainism, but not likely that he became a Jain. In spite of doubts it appears to be certain that Kālaka sūri, the Jain teacher and author, and Vikramāditya, the king of Ujjain, were historical persons.

Notice in brief of the Jain work on Buddhism.

The work begins with an exposition of the Buddhist religion as professed by the Jains, including the worship of Harr Hora, and Hiranyagarba, i.e., of Viṣṇu, Siva and Brahmā. Then follows discourses on Dharma and Adharma, showing what is religion and what irreligion, on the qualities and perfection of Bhagavān Sākya Buddha, and on behaviour in assemblies of Jains. The original treatise is in the Māgadhi language. [See Proc. As. Soc. 1873, p. 40.]

Pārśvanātha was contemporaneous with other great men of the time. Two centuries later lived Mahāvīra, who, like Buddha, was of the royal caste.

In several features Jainism differs from Buddhism; it has never left India, and is still a quasi sect. It has a form of worship; ineffable bliss is the goal of Jainism, not nirvāna; both lay stress on morality, charity, purity, patience, courage, contemplation, knowledge; both get rid of caste, and are atheistic. The Jains number one and-a half million; they enjoin mercy to all animated beings, and place a cloth over their mouths to save the lives of insects; they have a considerable literature, and an order of priesthood.

Ch. 1. Jainism and Buddhism.

The article on Jainism and Buddhism draws special attention to the student of Indian Religions. The most important fact brought out is the relation of Jainism and Buddhism. Instead of Jainism being, as was formerly supposed, an offshoot from Buddhism, it is shown to extend as far back as 3,000 B.C. It is found flourishing alongside the nature worship of the rude tribes in Northern India. The author points out that Asoka on becoming a Buddhist changed his title, and it is significant of the difference between Jainism and Buddhism.

Rhys Davids is of opinion, that the few Buddhists who were left in India at the Mahomedan conquest of Kashmir, in the twelfth century, preserved an ignoble existence by joining the Jain sect, and by adopting the principal tenets as caste and ceremonial observations of the antecedent Hindu creeds—One of the chief features of the Jain religion is their extreme respect for animal life.

KINGSBURY, F. and G. E. PHILIPS. Hymns of the Tamil Saivite Saints. Calcutta, 1921.

Pp. 10-11. Influence of the Saiva pilgrim poet Sambandar in conquering in argument a vast multitude of Jains in the presence of the king of Madura—Conversion of the king to Saivism—Impalement of eight thousand stubborn Jains with the consent of Sambandar.

- P. 27. Sambandar's poems contain frequent denunciations of Buddhism or Jainism proving that the poems were composed at a time when the struggle between Hinduism and these other religions was at its highest.
- P. 33. Jains setting fire to Sambandar's house—His prayer for an attack of fever of the Pandyan king, then a Jain.
- P. 59. Apparsvāmi, a saiva, got sunk in the sea by the Jain persecutors, but he began to float on the surface on crying "Hail, siva".
- P. 61. Apparsvāmi when smitten with an inward disease forsock Saivism and became a Jain.
